VOL. 11.

PIOCHE, NEVADA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9 1900.

NO. 20.

NEVADA'S POPULATION.

Nevada's population, as shown by the last census, is 42,834, as against 45,761 in 1890, a decrease during the ten years of 3,427.

This is the only State in the Union showing a falling off. Every one of the others, including the Territories shows gains ranging from 10 to 20 per cent.

The census shows 84,400 persons in the service of the United States stationed abroad.

It shows the number of Indians on reservations to be 145,282 and that the population of the seven Territories is 1,667,313, and in 1890 252,943.

California has increased in population 276,923 since 1890, Washington shows an increase of 168,282, Utah 68,660, Colorado 137,502.

Powers, the Kentuckian convicted of complicity in the murder of Goebel, may be executed if he put some faith in the idea that thirteen is an unlucky number. He was nominated for office for June 13, 1899, arraigned July 13, 1900, as one of thirteen conspirators named, was defended by thirteen lawyers, his sweet heart was the thirteenth witness; the evidence showed that 1,300 soldiers were ready to defend him; he gave Calton $1,300 to pay the expenses of the mountaineers; he took $1,300 with him when he fled; the evidence closed Aug. 13.

Edward Henry, reputed to be the oldest man in the country, died at his home last week, aged 116 years. He was born a slave in Culpepper, Va., in 1784. He was married five times, and is survived by his fifth wife, by whom he had thirteen children. He is said to be the father or sixty children.

One hundred and seventy pupils are now registered at the Carson Indian school, the largest number in the history of that institution.

The estate of the nonagenarian, Jacob McKissick, who recently died in Reno, is appraised at $200,000.

EUREKA COUNTY LANDS

Public Lands Will Be Surveyed on Application.

Surveyor General Kyle of Reno spent a couple of days in Eureka this week on business connected with his office. He informed us that he is prepared to let contracts for surveying the public lands in this county as soon as settlers send the necessary affidavits of improvements to his office. Any person interested may secure further information by applying to Peter Breen, Esq., at Eureka, or by writing to the Surveyor General at Reno.

In Humboldt and Elko counties during the past year, Mr. Kyle says, about $35,000 has been expended by the Government in surveying lands, while in the counties of Eureka, Lincoln and Lander nothing has been done in this direction for years.

Mr. Kyle was Sheriff of Eureka county during the good times, and resided here for a number of years prior to 1882.—Sentinel.

She Made It Unanimous.

An exchange tells of a prominent young man who wrote a lady of his acquaintance as follows:

My Dear Miss:—I hereby announce myself as a candidate for your hand, and I shall use all fair and honorable means to secure the nomination. I know there are many candidates in the field, and I hesitated long before entering the race, but now I am in to stay. My views on love and matrimony have often been expressed in your hearing, and I will not repeat them here. You know I favor the gold standard of love—a 100 cent dollar love—and a maintenance of that standard after marriage. If you decide to confer upon me the honor I speak of, please fix a date for a caucus with your mother. I have no objections to her acting as temporary chairman, providing it is clearly understood that I am to be chairman of the permanent organization. Should the result of the caucus prove satisfactory, we can soon hold the primaries and select the date and place of the convention.

I have never believed in long campaigns, so if you decide to honor me I will ask you to make the convention date as early as possible.

Devotedly Yours.

And the young lady telegraphed back: Caucus unnecessary. Nomination unanimous. Come at once and fix date of ratification.

WOMEN WHO HUNT.

Modern Dianas Are Numerous in the Maine Woods.

Accompanied by Professional Guides the Fair Disciples of Nimrod Go Forth to Slay.

Though women have been hunting in the state each fall with good success for the last ten years, women have not before this ventured in unless with male escort. These women who are stepping up beyond the Dagobert "dead water" are some very self-reliant women from Massachusetts. They work in some of the stores in a populous city, and, being spinsters, decided to paddle their own canoe this season. One or two reliable guides accompanied them, and, according to all reports, they are doing extremely well. One of them vouchsafed the information to a passing sportsman that they were doing "a blessed sight better than if they had half a dozen men tagging them around to see that they didn't wet their feet or blow their heads off with their rifles."

"But," remarks old Jed Hawkes, "there won't be any spruce gum left in that neighborhood. Lord, how those women are yanking. They say they have chewed a great deal of gum in their lives, but that they never knew what the clear gum was till they came down here into the state of Maine."

While they're about it they are going to take back all they can dig, buy or beg to the city. Even the tall trees can't hide their big bumps away from these women. Three of them wear bloomers and have lots of muscle and they kin climb anything that comes along, from trees to catamounts. Those women are safe enough.

It is said that half the parties that went into the Moosehead region last fall had women as members.

You see, the women have for so many years heard their male friends tell of the ecstatic delights of hunting in the big Maine woods that their feminine curiosity has been excited and there has been a veritable clamor to be allowed to go in. Once in awhile there is one woman who finds the trip enough to last her for a lifetime. The fun isn't at all as she has expected it would be.

The woods may be good enough for the men, but as for her, she prefers the boulevard and the shopping district.

Then there are other women who meet the most ferocious weather, the Maine woods have to furnish; who are drenched every other day to the skin and who get dumped out of a canoe two or three times just by the way of variety.

These women go home and tell all the folks that they have had just the most lovely time and that they are all impatient for the year to roll around, so that they may go again. These are the kind of heroines that can extract fun from every mishap. They are the only kind that should tackle the dubious pleasures of the Maine woods. For that class—and it is an extensive one—that enjoys roughing it, there is no enjoyment in all the world like the autumn forest. But the person who goes in for the first time without proper conception of the nature of the fun will be supremely miserable himself, or herself, and will make all the folks around more miserable still.

The women haven't commenced to go into the Moosehead and the Panadocook wilderness yet to any great extent. Last year several parties went in from Staceyville to the vicinage of old Katadish and remained several weeks until the snow came. The women were of the right sort to stand all the adversities, though they were from the city and said that they had the best time of their lives.

And the ladies have had pretty good luck up that way in the shooting line. One Lynn doctor has been coming down into Maine every fall for years after a moose.

He has been able to shoot deer enough. But deer have got to be too small game for him. Last season he brought down his niece to see him get the prize, for he felt sure that at last his patient was to be rewarded.

One day while they were coming down Elack stream the niece, who was a little way ahead in a canoe with one of the guides, saw a moose standing near the water's edge. The animal was side on, and presented a splendid mark. Up went the little rifle, and though the hand of the maiden trembled convulsively good fate sped the ball true and the moose fell dead with a bullet through his heart.

That night the uncle figured up that he had spent over $1,000 in chasing after a moose through the Maine forest—and still lacked the moose. Here was his 19-year-old niece down for the week, and lo! she almost had a moose brought to her. The uncle disgustedly decided that hunting was about all lack, anyway.

There is one thing to say about the women who have been coming to Maine woods for the last ten years. Not one has yet shot one of the guides for a bear or her husband for a deer. The woodsmen say that when the women are out hunting they are very cautious, and with all a woman's inherent fear that something will happen, and that no matter how unskilled the women may be in the use of firearms, the guides are in never apprehensive of accidents. It is never apprehensive of accidents. It is never apprehensive of accidents. It is never apprehensive of accidents. It is never apprehensive of accidents.
